Buckley Viewpoint: Making the right career decision

Buckley Viewpoint

Contract specialist reflects on career decision

By Mr. Chad Gagon
460th Contracting Squadron

As graduation drew near, it was clear that I had a major decision to make; Do I pursue a career with a private accounting firm, or should I pursue a career with Uncle Sam?

After several interviews with private companies, I had the opportunity to interview for a Copper Cap Internship position with the Air Force. I was impressed with the Copper Cap program and the opportunities I would have. I wanted a job that would be challenging, where I could continue my education, and had the potential for upward progression.

When I interviewed for the Copper Cap Internship position, I found a program that offered everything that I was looking for. On July 1, 2002, I started my new career with the government as a Copper Cap Intern in the contracting career field – as 460th Contracting’s first-ever Copper Cap! The decision was made, and I chosen the government.

Having never been part of the military you can imagine that the first few months were interesting to say the least. It took some time to learn the different acronyms used in contracting. Learning is so much easier when you can understand what is being said to you.

The 460 CONS Copper Cap Training Plan encompasses three years and gives me an opportunity to gain experience in each facet of operational contracting.

The first eight months at Buckley I spent in the Government Purchase Card Program.

After eight months, it was time for me to rotate into a new assignment. I moved into the Performance Management Flight to gain knowledge of the Small Business and Quality Assurance Programs.

At the end of my first year I was transferred into my first buying flight, 460 CONS/LGCB, to learn award and administration of base operating support contracts and orders. I moved into the buying flight in July.

Now that I am nearing the end of my second year, I am gearing up for my next rotation assignment. In June I will be moving over to the LGCA flight where I will get a chance to learn about construction contracting and other civil engineering needs. I know it will be challenging, but I look forward to expanding my knowledge.

Two years down, and only one more to go. As I look back over the last two years I am amazed at the amount of knowledge I have gained -- knowledge about contracting, and a greater understanding and appreciation for the mission of the Air Force. I have had the opportunity to go out and see different parts of the country that I had never seen before, and meet so many great people.

The greatest part about the decision I made two years ago is that I can spend a great deal of time with those that matter most to me, my wife and two little girls (soon to be three). Today, if you asked me if I felt that I made the right decision by working for the government, the answer would be a resounding YES!

Two weeks ago, the Mile High Guardian reported in the D.O.R.K. ad that the 460th Medical Squadron was the last squadron to have a member receive a DUI charge. This was incorrect and the Mile High Guardian staff apologizes for any confusion this may have caused. The 2nd Space Warning Squadron was the correct unit.

60 years of freedom:

Remembering those who fought and died for freedom’s cause on D-Day, June 6, 1944

By Tech. Sgt. Craig Wolfe
460th Air Base Wing historian

“The free men of the world are marching together to victory.” That was a piece of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower’s Order of the Day on June 6, 1944.

As our brothers-in-arms from 60 years ago leave us at the rate of more than 1,000 per day, it is with great honor and respect that the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen from today pay respect to all of those who served valiantly in the name of freedom on June 6, 1944. Their sacrifices helped to ensure the continuing freedom and democracy that people all over the world have enjoyed for the last six decades.

On June 6, 1944 the largest armada of ships and aircraft ever assembled set forth from Great Britain to the shores of Normandy, France. Over 7,000 ships, and 8,000 aircraft carried 133,000 American, British, Canadian and other Allied soldiers to the heavily defended “Atlantic Wall” beaches at Normandy. During the first day of battle, Allied forces suffered 10,300 casualties. Providing us another reminder that freedom is not free.

By the end of June, the Allies had landed 850,000 men, 148,000 vehicles and over 570,000 tons of supplies as they began the drive that brought about the end of greatest conflagration the world had ever endured.

“We will accept nothing less than full victory.” Another part of General Eisenhower’s Order of the Day on June 6, 1944.

Order of the Day, June 6, 1944

Army Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower

Soldiers, Sailors and Airmen of the Allied Expeditionary Force! You are about to embark upon the Great Crusade, toward which we have striven these many months. The eyes of liberty loving people everywhere march with you. In company with our brave Allies and brothers in arms on other Fronts, you will bring about the destruction of the German war machine, the elimination of Nazi tyranny over the oppressed peoples of Europe, and security for ourselves in a free world.

Your task will not be an easy one. Your enemy is well trained, well equipped and battle hardened. He will fight savagely.

But this is the year 1944! Much has happened since the Nazi triumphs of 1940-41. The United Nations have inflicted upon the Germans great defeats, in open battle, man to man. Our air offensive has seriously reduced their strength in the air and their capacity to wage war on the ground. Our Home Fronts have given us an overwhelming superiority in weapons and munitions of war, and placed at our disposal great reserves of trained fighting men. The tide has turned! The free men of the world are marching together to victory!

I have full confidence in your courage and devotion to duty and skill in battle. We will accept nothing less than full Victory!

Good luck! And let us beseech the blessing of Almighty God upon this great and noble undertaking.

Duty Title: Contract specialist in the Base Infrastructure Flight

Hometown: Aurora, Colo.

Hobbies: Watching the Broncos, Air Force Aacademy Football, CU and CSU football, playing Poker, spending time with family

How do your day-to-day duties contribute to mission success?

I just try to give 100 percent in everything I do and I hope my effort has an impact on the mission of the 460th Contracting Squadron, 460th ABW and the Air Force.

If you could change one thing about the Air Force what would it be?

Nothing – I feel the United States Air Force is the greatest Aerospace Force in the world.

What has been your most memorable experience in the Air Force?

Seeing how incredible the Air Force arsenal is at a Buckley Air Show in 1997. Hearing the jet noise really emphasized “The sound of Freedom.” Also, when the 140th Fighter Wing returned from their Iraqi Freedom deployment in the summer of 2003, and the wing stand-up in 2002.

Significant accomplishments:

Quick award of prairie dog removal contract for family housing sites and new wing head-quarters sites.

Awarded contracts valued at over $286K for chemical protection gear and body armor to protect our troops.

A wonderful wife and supportive family is one of his significant achievements.

Augmentees help security forces keep Buckley secure

By Airman 1st Class Chris Smith
460th Public Affairs

Airmen from various units here are tasked to become security forces augmentees to help maintain security at Buckley Air Force Base.

These augmentees are called upon to support temporary, short-term workload surges during wartime, contingency, natural disasters and during exercise situations.

The augmentee program has been in place across the Air Force for over 20 years, according to Tech. Sgt. John Facemire, 460th Security Forces Squadron. Here, it has been in place since Buckley was named an Air Force base.

Airmen throughout the wing who are tasked for the augmentee program attend two weeks of training, according to Sergeant Facemire. One week of the training is learning about the program in the classroom, the second week is flight orientation where they actually work alongside security forces and get on-the-job training.

Once augmentees complete their two-week training course, they are then available to be called upon, during times of personnel shortages or recalls, for example. The augmentees can be called upon for one year following the training.

“Security forces is one of the most tasked career fields in the Air Force,” said Sergeant Facemire. “We have a large contingent of assigned (SFS) Airmen deployed. By tasking units for augmentees, SFS is given a pool of personnel that will be able to man security forces posts during the increased force protection conditions on when there aren’t enough security forces present for duty. This gives SFS the ability to man all the required posts and reduces the chance of a mission failure because the cops don’t have enough people.”

While it is beneficial to the base for augmentees to be available for security when the need arises, Sergeant Facemire said it is also beneficial to the Airmen because they get to experience something different.

“Being an augmentee gives someone a chance to work outside of his or her career field and a first-hand look at the job of security forces. This usually gives someone a whole different respect for the security forces Airman that is working an entry control point or just driving around in a patrol vehicle,” he said.

Airman 1st Class Deanna Lenhart, 460th Communications Squadron, said she was tasked to become an augmentee and is ready to start her training.

“I’m very excited for the chance to be an augmentee,” she said. “I think it will give me the chance to try something new and interesting, get away from my everyday routine for awhile and see different aspects of the military and how fellow members serve.”

For more information or to volunteer to be a security forces augmentee, members should contact their unit augmentee coordinator or their unit first sergeant.

Buckley CDC children celebrate milestone

By Ms. Kristen Speck
460th Public Affairs

The Child Development Center (CDC) hosted a graduation ceremony on May 28, for their kindergarten class.

“Our CDC staff works hard to make sure that each child feels at home as they continue to grow and learn,” said Mr. Randy Henline, Services Director. “This day is a testament to the teamwork of dedicated teachers and supportive parents.”

Before the ceremony, 19 children lined up outside the auditorium. Each got some help from parents and teachers making sure that their blue caps and gowns were positioned just right before the ceremony began. Some looked out the window for their parents, others compared newly-acquired scars, and a few mimicked the teachers with their hands held in the shape of an “L” for listen.

The newest kindergarten ‘alumni’ of Buckley’s Child Development Center graduated May 28.

After the children filed into the auditorium, the Mile High Honor Guard posted the colors, and Ms. Lindsey Gaszczynski, one of the newest CDC employees sang the national anthem. The children turned to face the flag with their hands over their hearts.

The children had prepared a song that described how important various people are to them. As they began Friends, you could hear “everybody hold hands,” shouted by a young graduate on the back row. The room filled with camera flashes from proud parents, and the children seemed delighted to be the center of attention.

After the song, the children were called up individually to receive their diplomas from Ms. Michelle Buscho and Ms. Ava Petit-Martin, child development center instructors. When the children returned to their seats, the diplomas quickly turned into telescopes, swords and microphones. The teachers kept the ceremony moving, and the children finished with a poem, K-I-N-D-E-R-G-A-R-T-E-N that began, “K is for calendar, we know that it is spelled wrong, but we try hard every day.”

After a brief conclusion by Mr. Henline, the group was invited to the community activitiy center for a reception and photographs.

The day was summed up best when graduate Shannah Eichel was asked what she was going to do next, “I’m not quite sure, but I always like having fun with my friends here.”

Exercise Guide

Snap it out, keep it handy, read it often

Combined Operational Readiness Exercise (ORE) and Expeditionary Readiness Exercise (ERE) Rules of Engagement (summary)

Safety
This is an exercise. Do not compromise safety for any reason. If you observe an unsafe condition, report it immediately to your supervisor. Remember to hydrate

Uniform
Uniform for the week is BDU. During recalls wear the BDU cap. During the deployment phase and after recall, if not tasked to “deploy,” unit cap is authorized. During employment phase BDU caps with subdued rank or helmets (if appropriate) will be worn. Non-players during employment phase will wear blue duty uniform or, if civilian, appropriate attire.

Notifications and Messages
Sim Cell (720-847-6738) will simulate all HHQ and off base support functions. Exercise messages and communications should not leave the base without EET coordination.

Building Operations
If evacuating your building for the exercise, continue established evacuation procedures unless directed to stop by EET or Battle Staff. Secure classified material. Building damage and building repair times will be input via inject cards from the EET. A minimum of one M8/M9 stand will be used to demonstrate capabilities at all play area buildings. HVAC shutdown will be simulated by marking the shutdown time on a piece of paper attached to the unit.

Vehicles
Five percent of unit vehicles (a minimum of one) will be properly covered during the employment phase based on the MOPP level. All vehicles used in the employment phase will be set up to simulate covering and chemical detection. Cover the windshields and place M8/M9 as required. Uncover to drive.

Communications
The word “exercise” will be used three times prior to and immediately following any exercise input.

Medical
If an exercise input is given for injuries, perform self-aid/buddy care and take the injured to a Casualty Collection Point (CCP). If the input is from a “simulated competent medical personnel” and they declare the person a fatality, contact your UCC immediately with casualty details. UCCs report casualties to the SRC immediately.

Damage Reports
Use the grid map to report building damage, contamination, casualties, unexploded ordnance and attacks IAW with the Buckley ATSO Guide.

Chemical Ensemble
During employment phase, all participating members will wear the proper gear IAW the current MOPP level. If you do not possess BDOs, simulate them by taping your BDUs in the same manner as the BDO (see Airmen’s Manual) and buttoning them all the way up.

SALUTE Reporting
